

AMELIE HADEN

EXHIBITION TITLE	This project focuses on the stereotypes and expectations of the male and female gender, as well as, the perception of different body types. It is not to condemn stereotypes but to acknowledge them and coexist with them out in the open. These stereotypes exist within ourselves and it is a call out and a space for recognition and perhaps acceptance.

ARTIST BIO

Born and raised in Virginia, Amelie Haden attended the Corcoran College of Art and Design for a BFA and returned for a Masters of Arts in Teaching. Amelie currently teaches S.T.E.A.M and Woodworking at a private school in St John, US Virgin Islands.

Amelie has a tendency to be whimsical and oftentimes has a comical element to it as well, seeking to create conversation about stereotypical and/or juxtaposing views. Amelie's recent work focuses on the stereotypes of the male and female gender. These works ask viewers to directly engage with the human form and with their own perceptions and biases.
